WASHINGTON - In a confidential report to Congress, the Defense Department says the U.S. nuclear arsenal for medium-range, short-range and naval weapons includes 10,800 warheads and emphasizes bombs and missiles over artillery. The report, which provides the first authoritative disclosure of the theater and tactical arsenal, shows that 5.845 warheads are in Europe. Some are under U.S. control, and others are under joint control of the United States and the European nation where they are based. The report, which is classified secret shows the European stock-

mix of weapons in the so-called piles to hold about 150 warheads fewer than previously reported. The United States and West European allies have agreed to withdraw almost 2,000 warheads from those stockoiles over the next five years. The arsenal in Western Europe is scheduled to be increased over the same period with the deployment of 572 Pershing-2 and ground-launched cruise missiles. # 35-Minute Arms Session Is Held in Geneva; Talks To Resume on Thursday

GENEVA — A three-sentence announcement by the U.S. mission that the talks with the Soviet Union on intermediate-range nuclear missiles would resume Thursday ended speculation that a Soviet walkout had terminated a 35-minute meeting of the two delegations Tuesday. The unusual brevity of Tuesday's formal session of the missile talks increased speculation of a possible Soviet walkout. This was prompted by the arrival Monday in Britain of the first of the new U.S. cruise missiles that are to be deployed by the Atlantic alliance in Europe beginning next month.

The speculation was not allayed by the refusal of Yuli A. Kvitsinsky, the Soviet delegation leader, to answer reporters' questions as he left the offices of the U.S. arms

"I am under agreement not to talk," the Soviet diplomat said. There was no immediate explanation from the U.S. side here for the brevity of the session, the first plenary meeting to follow the American offer to place a ceiling of 420 on the nuclear warheads on each side's intermediate-range missiles. The offer was presented Monday to Mr. Kvitsinsky by the U.S. negotiator, Paul H. Nitze.

Tass called the latest U.S. proposal "absolutely unacceptable." Reuters reported Tuesday from Moscow. Many observers do not expect the Soviet Union to carry out its threat to break off the talks if the alliance begins the planned deployment over five years of 572 Pershing-2 and cruise missiles before the final approval of the stationing of such missiles in West Germany is given by the Bonn parliament. This approval - if an accord can not be reached here beforehand is expected to be given at the close of a debate to be held next week. The possibility of a Soviet walk-

But Coup 'Opened Doors' To Aggression, He Says

> By Richard J. Meislin New York Times Service

HAVANA - President Fidel Castro of Cuba, denouncing the U.S. invasion of Grenada, says it came only after the men who had everthrown and killed Prime Minister Maurice Bishop "sank the revolution and opened the doors to imperialist aggression."

Speaking for 90 minutes Monday before an enthusiastic crowd of more than one million in Revolution Square, Mr. Castro drew re-peatedly on images of Adolf Hitler and German Fascism to describe President Ronald Reagan and the

Oct. 25 invasion.

The revolution in Grenada, he said, ended before U.S. troops landed at the airport that Cubans were helping to build at Point Sa-lines. He said the revolution "could not have survived the internal struggle led by Deputy Prime Min-ister Bernard Coard and that the "symbol of progress and independence" that Grenada had become "had been destroyed already."

Mr. Castro repeatedly praised Mr. Bishop as an exceptional revo-lutionary leader in whom he had the highest trust.

"The Coard group never had such relations, or such intimacy, or such confidence," he said, adding that relations "were cold and tense" between Cuba and the new Grenadian government.

"There did not exist the most minimal coordination," he said, "between the Grenadian Army and the Cuban construction workers and collaborators" at the time of

The United States," Mr. Castro said, "intending to kill a symbol, killed a corpse, and on the contrary, resuscitated the symbol."

He said Grenada would serve as the inspiration for revolutionaries in El Salvador, Nicaragua and the rest of the world, having shown that "the strongest forces can be fought and not be feared."

Mr. Castro's address preceded the burial ceremonies for the 24. Cubans killed during the invasion. They were buried 40 minutes later at the Colon military cemetery as an honor gnard stood by somberly and a military band played.

A ceremony for 13 Grenadians killed in the invasion and brought to Cuba was to be held Tarsday, Original reports said a total of 49 bodies were being brought from Grenada to Cuba, but a Cuban official said 12 were left in Grenada when they were positively identified as Grenadians, not Cubans.

bans were responsible for the overthrow of Mr. Bishop, that American medical students on the island were in danger and were the primary reason for the invasion, and that Cuba was considering its own invasion and occupation of Grenada.

Hotel in Tahiti Will Close Following Losses in Strike

The Associated Press PAPEETE, Tahiti — The 201-room Tahara'a, one of Tahiti's largest hotels, said it was shutting down and looking for a buyer because it could no longer absorb losses from a three-week strike by hotel workers demanding a five-day, 40-hour week instead of the present six-day, 48-hour week.

The 200-room Tahiti Beachcomber said it had reopened, but the union threatened to ring it with pickets and force it to close again. Representatives of a third hotel, the 230-room Hotel Sofitel Maeva Beach, said they were willing to attend a meeting with union lead-ers but added that it would take at least two years for the hotel to recoup its losses.

Soviet Saw Grenada as Another Cuba, According to Papers Released by U.S.

By Bernard Gwertzman New York Times Service

WASHINGTON - Marshal Nikolai V. Ogarkov, the Soviet chief of staff, reportedly told the Grenadian chief of staff in Moscow in March that, while two decades ago "there was only Cube in Latin America today there are Missage." America, today there are Nicara-gua, Grenada, and a serious battle is going on to El Salvador."

The remark is contained in what appears to be a photocopy of a memorandum prepared on the let-terhead of the Grenadian Embassy in Moscow. The document was made public Monday by the State

It was one of 21 newly released documents that the department says were captured last month after the invasion of Grenada. An initial packet was made public Nov. 4. According to the report of Marshal Ogarkov's conversation with the Grenadian chief of staff, Major Einstein Louison, the Russian said. Grenada should be "vigilant at all rimes" against possible U.S. attack but that he was confident the United States could not reverse the trend in the region.

"Ogarkov pointed out that the United States would try now and in the future to make things difficult for progressive change in all regions and continents," said the report, which was drafted by Bernard Bourne, the Grenadian Embassy's minister-counselor.

"The marshal said that, over two decades ago, there was only Cuba in Latin America, today there are Nicaragua, Grenada, and a serious battle is going on to El Salvador."

Marshal Ogarkov, who is a first deputy minister of defense, was not reported to have made any further military commitment to Grenada. The previous documents disclosed military supply accords signed by Grenada with the Soviet Union, Cuba and North Korea.

An underlying theme in the documents is the desire of the Grenadian government of Prime Minister Manrice Bishop to strengthen military, economic and political nes with Communist nations.

Mr. Bishop was deposed in mid-October and killed Oct. 19. The United States invaded on Oct. 25. One document, labeled "secret," is a summary of decisions taken in Havana on June 29, 1983, by the Cuban Communist Party and the New Jewel Movement, which was the ruling party in Grenada.

In it. Cuba pledged to train technicians and other specialists for making billboards and posters, taking photographs and opposing reli-

WASHINGTON - The president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops has acknowledged that some tensions exist between the Vatican and the U.S. Catholic Church. But he attributed them largely to misinformation and said that Pope John Paul II had Archbishop John R. The pope's "basic message to us has been one of collegial encour-

The tensions that do exist arise from "misperceptions and misinformation," he said. As an exam ple, Archbishop Roach told of a Vatican cardinal who was alarmed by the rapid rise in annulments granted over the last decade in the United States but who "didn't rec-ognize the reason for it" and "quarreled with the qualifications of our people" on the marriage tribunals

A South Korean Bungle

President Reagan had a demanding assignment in South Korea, and be bungled it. His proper task was to reassure the South Koreans, who bave suffered savage attacks from their communist neighbors in recent months, while at the same time quietly encouraging the Scoul government to relax its tight grip on its own people. Mr. Reagan did provide assurance on the security front - in a tone of unusually high emotion. His performance on the democracy front was something else.

The human rights issue had been much discussed before Mr. Reagan arrived. So it was revealing that President Chun Doo Hwan. having calculated what the traffic would bear. put some hundreds of South Korea's peaceable and patriotic dissidents under bouse arrest. The president's party, questioned about the detentions, professed to be unaware of them. Did the imperatives of protocol or "quiet diplomacy" compel him to be a submissive partner in his bost's excess of security zeal? The explanation from the White House, that the United States does not interfere in its friends' internal affairs, was a joke.

The Reagan administration regularly declares that its policy of pressing human rights issues quietly in South Korea pays off. But in Scoul over the weekend, Mr. Reagan conducted a pobcy of lond diplomacy. He did not simply stay publicly mute about South Korea's violations. He strongly praised its "continued progress." It was no routine speechwriter who had him welcoming President Chun's "farsighted plans for a constitutional transfer of power in 1988" - yes, 1988. It was a satirist.

The vicious bostility that South Korea faces across the Demilitarized Zone helps explain some of its lapses. At its worst it is a fair and enlightened place compared with North Korea. It is factually wrong to say that one is as bad as another, and politically tendentious to use that assertion to argue that Washington should review its security tie to Seoul.

But some 30 years of the American presence should have convinced all South Koreans and, one hopes, North Koreans - that the United States is a faithful ally. The same 30 years should have convinced South Koreans. especially the self-chosen military leadership, that they only burden their nation's relationship with its principal friend in the world by ruling with an unnecessarily harsh hand. Mr. Reagan is inclined to overlook that. Many other Americans are not

Capitalism for the Military

The military appropriations bills now taking final shape in Congress do nothing to resolve a paradox: Despite the largest real-dollar peacetime military program in history, U.S. forces have been stretched thin by a few peacekeeping operations and the invasion of Grenada. One cause of the disparity between effort and result is the cost of weapons. The new ships, planes and tanks now being ordered carry unit prices so high that even the Pentagon can afford dangerously few. When these weapons break down, the spare parts turn out to be even more expensive.

The cure is not more appropriations. It lies in a hill introduced last month by Senator Charles Grassley, Republican of Iowa. "We want to see the Defense Department apply the same principles and values for purchasing goods and services as all other Americans do. And for one simple reason: It works." So said Senator Grassley in introducing what he calls the "creeping capitalism" bill.
It would compel the Pentagon to increase by 5 percent each year the share of the contracts that are advertised for competitive bidding, until 70 percent of the Pentagon's dollars are competitively bid. At present, according to a study hy the General Accounting Office, a mere 6 percent of Pentagon money is spent competitively, mostly for items like paper clips and note pads. The most obvious symptom of the lack of bidding is the price paid for spare parts. Thus Boeing charges the air force $1,11826 for the plastic cap that protects the leg of a stool in the AWACS radar plane.

Contractors blame the Pentagon for ordering spares in small quantities, and justify their fancy prices as including officially sanctioned overhead. But they have manipulated the Pentagon's spare parts ordering system to their advantage by regularly increasing prices without respect to cost, or by preventing the Pentagon from buying directly from subcontractors. As the Senate has been learning in current hearings, Pentagon functionaries who question the system are subject to punishment. The Pentagon's ahhorrence of competition affects not only the price of weapons hut something far more serious; their quality. Sole-source suppliers are much more likely to produce unreliable goods than those who must regularly compete to renew their contracts. The air force is at last beginning to perceive a connection between compention and quality For years it has had problems with the F-100 engine used in its F-15 and F-16 fighters. In choosing an improved engine, it is making Pratt & Whitney, the sole supplier of the F-100, compete with General Electric. As a result, says Lieutenant General Lawrence Skantze, it is getting "very good engines with warranties and guarantees that we've never been able to get before ... In a sole-source environment, we didn't have a prayer."

That is an appalling verdict. The competition that Lieutenant General Skantze now supervises is a notable departure for a major weapons contract. It is Senator Grassley's sound purpose to make the exception the rule.

Other Opinion

Cruise Missiles Reach Britain

In one sense the arrival of cruise missiles and their eventual deployment makes no difference to the nuclear equation and thus has no bearing on the likelihood of war. But in another sense, that in which the senior partner of the alliance is seen as pegging out its frontier more purposefully, the cruises are apt to be perceived as demonstrating a preparedness for war as much as a determination to prevent it. The missiles provide scope for the growth of suspicion between members of the alliance. It cannot be maintained that relations within the alliance are at all healthy when the ground for these suspicions, as in the dual-key controversy, is so self-evidently fertile. The misgivings in Britain illustrate the need for a more equal defense partnership between Europe and the United States.

- The Guardian (London).

The first American cruise missiles are here on British soil. Britain should bave its own key. But, with or without that dual key, we accept the case for this first batch of American warheads. Cruise is not only a deterrent to nuclear war. Paradoxically, it can also be the spur to a new nuclear treaty between East and West. - The Daily Mail (London).

According to the latest opinion poll, a full 94 percent of the British people believe that London should have dual control over the cruise missiles to be deployed in Great Britain so that the United States could not fire the missites without British consent. The British government believes that such a "two-key" system is unnecessary and might harm the credibility of the nuclear force in Soviet eyes. But if Mrs. Thatcher changes her mind under political pressure and decides that dual control would be desirable after all, Washington should not try to talk her out of it. The missiles, after all, will be on British soil, and there are precedents for dual-key arrangements. Actually the U.S. finger will not be alone on the nuclear trigger, even without a dual-key arrangement. As the deputy supreme com-mander of NATO reminded newsmen the other day, NATO rules already provide that any decision to use nuclear weapons assigned to the alliance must be made collectively.

British prime ministers have generally been satisfied with an agreement worked out between London and Washington in the 1950s that provides, to quote Mrs. Thatcher, that "no nuclear weapon would be fired from British territory without the permission of the British prime minister." There has always been a certain amount of sentiment, however, in favor of arrangements that would make it physically impossible for the U.S. president to overlook that commitment and act on his own.

As the anti-nuclear campaign in Britain has progressed, the demands for a dual-key system have grown louder. For both Americans and Europeans, the important thing to remember is that the purpose of the Pershing-2 and cruise missiles is to prevent the Soviets from using their SS-20s to bully the Europeans. The United States, with its armada of strategic weapons, does not need Euromissiles for its own defense. That being the case, the United States has no cause to feel strongly one way or the other about the dual-key issue. If the time comes when the Thatcher government decides that political reality requires the strengthening of British control over the missiles, Americans should quietly go along.

WASHINGTON - Plans to establish a trans-Atlantic airline between the United States and Europe, with intermediate "floating islands," have been announced by Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce. The scheme, according to Roper, would involve the expenditure of $30,000,000, and a 24-hour service between America and Europe is contemplated. To test the efficiency of floating bases in mid-ocean a quarter section of a "floating island" will be constructed and put through rigorous trials before the Government commits itself further on this novel scheme. Even this experimental "island" will cost $1,500,000. More than 10.000 men will find employment for two years in the development of the plan.

Let the Press Help Grenada to Get a Press

By Flora Lewis

P ARIS — The argument about America's reasons for invading Grenada goes on. So does the occupation. History's judgment will depend on results of the invasion in the longer term, and those results will depend on what happens next.

It is of the greatest importance that U.S. troops withdraw quickly. No matter how warm the welcome, an occupation force soon wears it out. But Grenada has no local police. They were absorbed into the People's Revolutionary Army, So the rapid arrival of a transition Commonwealth police (not mili-tary) force is needed to assure a return to normalcy.

Equally important, for development of a responsible and democratic government - something that President Reagan pledged to restore but that Grenada has never known - is a free press. Harold Hoyt, editor of The Nation in neighboring Barbados, said on the telephone that "a strong and independent press would have had a lot to do with preventing what hap-pened in Grenada in the last five years." Mr. Hoyt runs an independent, critical newspaper that com-petes with a pro-establishment daily and has curbed the government of Barbados at times.

There was one abortive effort by Leslie Pierre to publish an opposi-tion paper in Grenada four years He was detained. Alister Hughes maintained a precarious existence as an independent journalist who originally supported Maurice Bishop's New Jewel Movement. He turned against it because of political prisoners and press repression. Both know what freedom means.

Any chance for development of a government based on popular consent and regional cooperation requires a local press that is not bebolden to any officialdom. It is disturbing that the governor gener-al. Sir Paul Scoon, has claimed the power to ban public meetings and censor the press. According to Oliver Clark, who publishes The Gleaner in Jamaica, Sir Paul has not imposed censorship as yet.

The independent newspapers in the English-speaking Eastern Caribbean are mounting an effort now to help get a Grenadian paper started. But they have meager means. This is an opportunity for the rest of the press, which has flourished on freedom, to show that it is willing to contribute to its principles as well as carp when they are violated.

The moment is especially meaningful because it coincides with the big debate at UNESCO on a "New World Information Order," which would endorse the right of government controls. One euphemism is the need to "protect journalists," no doubt the reason for absence of UNESCO complaint about Washington's refusal to let reporters cover the Grenada invasion. The Reagan administration used the same excuse — which is about the first time it has agreed with UNESCO.

the "right to information," which clearly means the right to know all the news a government considers fit to print, and no more.

United States, inter-American and international organizations established to safeguard press free-doms have watchdogs to monitor the debate. Washington is threatening to cut off its large contribution to UNESCO's budget if the principle of press control is endorsed.

A barrage of heavy-caliber words is being exchanged at UNESCO's surrealistic Paris headquarters. In Grenada, the issue is real and immediate. For the same reason that the U.S. invasion was easy, because the island is small, it would be easy and inexpensive for the big guns of the world's free press to help a Grenadisa publication join their numbers.

The needs according to local people, are elementary. They are typewriters, photographic paper, computers, travel and maintenance expenses for experienced Caribbean journalists to help train a local staff. Another UNESCO amhemism is The urgency is to get it going before either a U.S. military establishment or Grenadian officials impose their

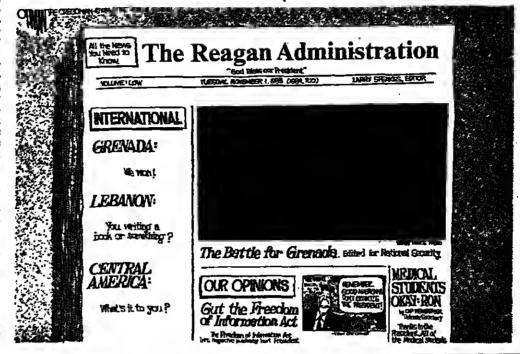

No government, whatever it professes, can be relied upon to assure press freedom. That is not a job for the administration in Washington but for the individuals and organizations who do not think that democracy can be the gift of any army or regime but think that it needs its own defense by information. The sooner elections can be held in Grenada, the better for all. But there are serious difficulties precisely because free political parties never developed. It is in the interest of the United States to get the marines out of the island and let Grenada work toward its own democracy.

A vigorous local press and radio could provide the first, best step. For once, instead of deploring, the press of the United States, the rest of the hemisphere and the Commonwealth could act as well as talk. A gesture of help would be widely noticed. It could weigh on UNES-CO and world opinion more than the marines in the longer future.

Beyond that Mr. Arafat did two supremely important things. First, he made the PLO a genuinely representative body. Even his enemies knew that Mr. Arafat and the Palestinian important issue in the world.

The potential of death and destruction on an unprecedented, almost unimaginable scale has been there since America and the Soviets exploded the first nuclear weapons. That is why American presidents of both parties, during a period of more than 30 years, have accepted as an imperative both the maintenance of the nuclear deterrent and the pursuit of nuclear arms-control. As Dwight D. Essenhower said, the nuclear weapon forced us to see that the essential struggle is not nation against nation; must continue our effort to control the costs and the destabilizing effects of the nuclear arms race. It is equally important that rightful revulsion at the consequences of nuclear war should not blind us to the fact that the system of mutual deterrence his prevented that war from occurring

His lack of popularity appears to stem partly from the violence that accompanied his rise to power in 1980, particularly the army's suppression of an uprising in Kwangju that left oearly 200 people dead. Isn't it kind of greedy for a sensitive musician who can discuss Bertolt Brecht, Billie Holiday, Hank Williams and Isabelle Adjani to get depressed because his product sells "only" 200,000 copies? He smiled, leaned back on the sofa and stared into space. He was wearing the same black suit, black shirt and blue loafers he wears on-stage: "Maybe it was because I liked that one the most up until that time, and it was the least successful.

"'Imperial Bedroom' was a complicated record with a lot of musical options on it, a lot of my interests. I didn't want to be limited to just a disco or mck beat. I knew I was being ambitious, ignoring all the current trends. I mean it was arrogant to say 'the hell with the human league, I'm going to do this anyway.' ONDON - Jane Lapotaire (as L was suggested by "Pial" on Broadway and in London a few years back) is an extremely starry and musical lady. What we still need is a mood musical for her to star in "Piaf" was essentially a play with songs; "Dear Anyone" (at the Cambridge) is a catchy kind of collage made up of bits of "Miss Lonelyhearts" and echoes of a long-running TV series called "Agony." which once starred Maureen Lipman, the wife of this show's author, lack Rosenthal

With music by Geoff Stephens and lyrics by Don Black, "Dear Anyone" takes us into a curious kind of time warp: Though conceived and written on this side of the Atlantic, it appears to have been put together by men with a deep sense of nostalgia for mid-'60s New York hits like "How to Succeed in Business" or "Promises,

It is as though Stephen Sondheim's "Company" or even "A Chorus Line" had never happened. There is a laborious opening number that takes about 20 minutes to say about urban Manhattan angst what Southern said in the first four lines of "Another Hundred People." There is Stubby Kaye Dance," but as a whole evening looks desperately stretched.

The show's last line, "No, really a wonderfully apt summary of a restored musical that has some good numbers, in between most of which it lurches into deep trouble. Ostensibly the story of a telephone operator on a New York paper (presumably of the tacky-tabloid variety) who rises to be its agony columnist but loses her soul in the process, it bears all the traces of a concept on which nobody has quite agreed about anything.

Rosenthal's plot starts by lurching off in various directions after the correspondents who write in with their problems. Mercifully besoon settles down in the newspaper office where Lapotaire is getting richer and nastier (though more amusing) with every letter that thuds onto her desk. Meanwhile Stubby Kaye is mysteriously being elevated from delivery boy to features editor, while out there on the street below living Davies is des-perately trying to think up some new choreography for the pedestri-ans, most of whom seem to be suffering from arteriosclerosis.

There's no thought here about New York life that Sondheim hasn't already expressed better in a musical. Indeed there's no thought here that Black himself hasn't beiter expressed in 'Tell Me on a Sunday," and then again you could argue that there's no thought here at all. "Dear Anyone" may have the dubious dinstinction of being the first musical in history to inciude a song about premature ejaculation, and it may at times degenerate into a tasteless and soggy shambles with a score about right for a 1957 big-band concert. On the other hand, it also has times (usually involving Kaye) when its appallingly sloppy, broken-backed and loose-leaf book is forgotten and an old-fashioned if ersatz Broadway joy is allowed to rise up from the footlights. For Lapotaire and Kaye alone, "Dear Anyone" is well worth a look. My guess is that in a thin season it would have done well enough; with 10 other musicals

And talking of musicals in trouble, over Waterloo Bridge the Old Vie is back in business with a new

For the new Old Vic itself f have nothing but praise: A £2-million ($3-million) refit has led to wonderfully refurbished foyers and bars as well as total reseating, so that you can now stretch your legs in wonderful luxury. More important, they have pulled out the false thrust stage that Sir Laurence Olivier unwisely built there during his 1960s National Theatre occupation, and as a result the old Victorian acoustics have been superbly

f wish I could be as enthusiastic about the opening show: As a Christmas pantomime treat for un? demanding children it might just about get by, belonging as it does to the school-play tradition of Rice's "Joseph and the Amazing Techni-color Dreamcoat" rather than "Su-perstar" or "Evita." But as a central figure for a musical, Blondel rates somewhere between Horatio and Will Scarlett: an amiable nondescript historical bystander to whom nothing ever happened, he might just have served as a singing narrator for a story about Richard the Lionbeart.

But once you reverse those roles and make Blondel the hero, you are left with a gaping hole where the center of the show should be. Rice is a versatile, witty and adroit lyncist, but he is no book writer and Blondel" is for much of its time a plotless shambles. Oliver's score is workmanlike but oddly undynamic, and the central figures of the minstrel and his fairly faithful companion have been horrendously undereast, so that we are left searching the sidelines for incidental

And in all fairness there are some of those; a quartet of jokey monks; a wonderfully manic villain from Chriz Langham, and finally the endearing notion that Blondel and his backing group (the Blondettes, what else?) end up like a medieval Cliff Richard and female shadows. But that is a one-joke idea for which we have to wait a long time, and Peter James's production is unable to conceal the fact that "Blondel" has no motive and no energy to carry us through its undistinguished score. Occasional random gags (King Richard signing auto-graphs on his way to the Crusades and then after his capture domg a haunting little number called "Saladin Days") work well enough, and the anachronism gags are as good here as they were in "Joseph." But they still don't add up to a show, least of all a show used to open a mas it may have to fight hard for a glitteringly restored theatrical pal-ace. Rice without Webber may well not be a bad idea (Webber without Rice after all had his own disaster with "Jeeves"), and Rice with Oliver may even turn out to be a good desperately underwritten affair ap- certainly isn't it.

Hasselkus to Steer BMW South Africa Rose 0.8% In Automaker's Drive to Raise Output In October

Walter Hasselkus is to take over the wheel at BMW South Africa as the West German car maker pumps 100 million rand ($85.4 million) into its operations there in an effort to double production.

operations there in an effort to double production.

Mr. Hasselkus, 41, currently is managing director of BMW (GB), where sales have doubled to 25,000 cars a year since he took over the British unit in 1980. Mr. Hasselkus is to take up his new post as managing director of BMW South Africa in Johannesburg early next year. He is to succeed Eberhard von Koerber, who is to become head of overall sales at BMW. Mr. von Koerber is to be based in the Munich head office.

The South African operation, BMW's only car-making facility outside West Germany, currently produces about 15,000 cars a year. BMW sells all these vehicles in South Africa, giving it a 5-percent market share there, Mr. Hasselkus said.

Mr. Hasselkus, who is West German, said that BMW sees the South African economic scene brightening in the second half of next year and BMW's market share rising to "at least" 6 percent. A company spokesman was more optimistic. He said BMW's South African market share next year would hit 10 percent, owing partially to the fact that the new plant will produce BMW's smaller models. Previously, BMW only made its top-of-the-line models in South Africa.

Paul Layzell, 42, who currently is the British unit's sales director, is to succeed Mr. Hasselkus as managing director of BMW (GB).

Macfarlane Named Chief of Bytec Unit Some 50 companies worldwide are making portable computers, but

George Macfarlane is undannited. Mr. Macfarlane has been appointed managing director of Bytec-Gulfstream Ltd., the new European subsidiary of Bytec Management Corp. of Ottawa. In his new U.K.-based post, Mr. Macfarlane is responsible for sales and marketing of the company's Hyperion portable business microcompiner in Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

Mr. Macfarlane concedes that it is a fiercely competitive market but he has high hopes for the Hyperion. One of the factors that Mr. Macfarlane thinks will make the Hyperion shine is that it is compatible with IBM's personal-computer software. "You must be IBM-compatible to succeed," he said. He also feels that Hyperion's competitive price tag of $4,000 and its "good looks" will be a major selling point. It's "beige, but a super design — a nice product to look at and to feel."

Since August, when the Hyperion began selling in Europe, the company has sold 800 to 1,000 units, Mr. Macfarlane said, adding that the company will be shipping about 1,500 units to Europe during the next three months. Projected sales for the Hyperion in Europe for the year ending Jan. 31 are $2 million to $2.5 million, he said. Mr. Macfarlane said Hyperion currently has about 12 to 15 percent of the total worldwide portable computer market, a figure he hopes will hit 25 percent in a year. He expects competition to get fiercer in the middle of next year, when be predicts IBM will amounce that it is entering the portable-computer race. "We'll have something better and less expensive than IBM," he said

WASHINGTON -- U.S. indus trial production rose a seasonally adjusted 0.8 percent in October, the smallest monthly gain since last February, the Federal Reserve Board reported Tuesday.

With the increase, the index of industrial production, which measures the output by the country's factories, mines and utilities, surpassed its previous peak reached in July 1981, just before the recession began. The October index was 154.8 percent of its 1967 level, the Fed reported, also only slightly above another peak reached in March 1979.

By Bill Sing

Los Angeles Times Service LOS ANGELES — McDonnell Douglas Corp.'s decision Friday to cancel its proposed MD-90 and MD-100 jetliner programs because of a lack of orders has again raised a troubling prospect for the world's airlines: Boeing Co.'s domination of world jetliner sales eventually may turn into a virtual monopoly. The move by McDonnell Douglas, which leaves it with only one commercial aircraft program. means that Boeing and Europe's Airbus Industrie will be the only two companies attempting to make a "family" of different-sized commercial jetliners. But while Boeing's share of worldwide jetliner sales is rebounding due to an upturn in orders, Airbus's fortunes are caught to a down-draft.

The European consortium, which makes the A-300 and A-310 wide-body jets, recently has been forced to cut its planned production rate 38 percent because of a virtual collapse of orders and loss of some critical sales competitions to Seattle-based Boeing. And Airbus Industrie's major hope for the future, a proposed 150-seat standard-bodied jet called the A-320, faces serious competitive challenges, analysts say.

Although Boeing's recent success in the highrisk industry could change, analysts say its advantages over rivals are growing.

Boeing's manufacturing costs, already the low-est in the industry as a result in part of its higher volume, will be helped by a recent cost-saving contract with its machinists union, analysts say. In contrast. McDonnell Douglas's attempt to win a similar contract from the United Auto Workers has resulted in a month-long strike.

Boeing's reputation for producing reliable planes has been enhanced by the performance of its new 757 and 767 jetliners, which have met or exceeded the company's initial claims on fuel effi-

Schröder Münchmeyer, he said, underlines the urgent need for this legislation."

The legislative offensive comes amidst mounting concern among central bankers over a sharp dccline in Euromarket lending by international banks that are hardpressed by problem loans to cash-strapped countries in Eastern Europe and the Third World.

-BRENDA HAGERTY U.S. Exchange-Rate Policy Criticized

By Bob Hagerty

nternational Herald Tribun LONDON — In what appeared to be a mild rebuke to U.S. economic policy, a senior Bank of England official warned Tuesday against "benign neglect" of the for-eign-exchange market.

Christopher McMahon, deputy governor of Britain's central bank, suggested that governments should take currency rates into account when setting their economic policy.

"To put it crudely," Mr. McMahon said at a conference sponsored by the International Herald Tribune, "the position I advance is that official indifference toward exchange-rate movements may tend to produce anarchy."

In Washington, a Treasury official said the U.S. exchange-rate policy is not one of benign neglect, though the Reagan administration has relied more beavily on market forces to determine the dollar's level than have previous U.S. governchange rates to belp interpret the behavior of money supply, Mr. Mc-Mahon said. In East-West Trade LONDON — After two to three lean years, trade between Eastern Europe and the West looks ready to grow modestly, according to a report released Tuesday.

looks ready to grow modestly, according to a report released Tuesday.

A recovery in Eastern Europe's economy and improved market conditions in the West signal the end of a difficult period following the West's trade sanctions against Poland, the research unit of the Economist magazine said.

According to Daniel Franklin, author of the report on the economics of the Eastern bloc, the West's disillusion with economic sanctions has served to relindle stronger contacts between the East and West, making the trade environment "somewhat fitter for having become leaner."

With the worst of the debt crisis over and interest rates lower than their 1981 peaks, Mr. Franklin foresees trade growing by 2 or 3 percent in 1983 and by 6 percent next year.

These figures hardly herald a full-scale recovery to the buoyant trading level of the 1970s, but at least could end the fall in the East's share of the market in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development countries.

Mr. Franklin emphasized that a healthy volume of trade between the two sides ultimately depends on the East's ability to earn hard currency.

In general, the Eastern bloc was aiming for export-led growth to help to achieve this rather than trying, as in the past, to stimulate export growth by importing sophisticated equipment from the West and paying for it later, he said.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR THE SHAREHOLDERS OF GULF OIL CORPORATION

By now you should have received Gulf's Proxy Statement for its Special Meeting of Shareholders to be held on Friday, December 2, 1983 to approve your Corporation's plan of reorganization. Your Board of Directors unanimously recommends this proposal as being in the best interests of Gulf shareholders.

You may also have received soliciting material from several shareholders calling themselves "Gulf Investors Group" and headed by T. Boone Pickens, Jr. of Mesa Petroleum. You should know that this Pickens-headed opposition group did not own a single share of Gulf stock until three months ago. Now, this group wants Gulf shareholders to keep cumulative voting, which would make it possible for the group to elect one or two members to Gulf's Board without the need for the _ favorable vote of any other shareholder. In the opinion of Gulf management, directors elected that way are likely to become representatives of a particular interest group.

By voting FOR your Company's proposed reorganization, you can help protect against a divided Board of Directors and expect that each member of your Board of Directors will continue to act in the interest of all Gulf shareholders.

To abstain from voting is the same as a vote against the proposal since it is necessary that more than 50% of the Company's outstanding shares be voted FOR the proposal for it to be approved.

We emphatically urge you to reject the Pickens opposition group. A closer look at Pickens' past statements and actions would seem to indicate that his interests and that of his group are not the same as those of the rest of Gulf's shareholders.

Indeed, as recently as October 19, 1983, on a Cable News Network interview, Pickens flatly stated: "I just work for one crowd; that's the Mesa shareholder."

THE MESA GROUP: HIT AND RUN?

Why is the Mesa group opposing your Board's proposal? In answering that question it is important to consider the following:

- Newsweek reported on October 31, 1983 that "most experts guessed that Pickens was out for a quick killing in Gulf stock," using "hit and run methods" to force "Gulf management to buy him out at a steep premium."
- The Wall Street journal of May 2, 1983 referred to Mr. Pickens' "image among some observers as samewhat af a corporate raider and profiteer" and then quoted Pickens, referring to a different situation involving other Mesa investments, "Sure, we're opportunistic. We're out to make money for [Mesa's] shareholders."
- According to The Wall Street Journal on November 2, 1983, "Mr. Pickens' biggest credibility problem is the suspicion that he will hit and run—leaving those who followed him into the stock high and dry." Indeed, the Mesa group has borrowed so heavily to buy their Gulf shares that, in the opinion of Gulf management, it is questionable whether they can afford to be more than a short-term investor. The same Wall Street Journal article reported that Mesa itself faces net annual interest costs of $24,000,000, or $67,000 a day, to hold its Gulf shares.
- The Economist said in its October 29, 1983 issue, "Mr. Pickens' best hope is to make such a nuisance of himself that Gulf, like Superior Oil, will grow weary and buy him out at a handsome profit." Speaking of Pickens' use of such a "strategy" in the past, an article in the San Francisco Chronicle on October 18, 1983 referred to it as "corporate blackmail".
- The Mesa group has hired investment bankers for a retainer fee of $1,000,000 as part of its campaign against Gulf. But under another part of the same arrangement those bankers will be paid a fee of up to $7,500,000 (including the retainer) if Mesa sells out its Gulf shares at a profit or a takeover bid is successfully made for Mesa itself. In the opinion of Gulf management, this may mean that there is substance to the Washington Post's speculation on October 30, 1983 that Mesa wants to pressure Gulf into making an over-priced bid for Mesa in order to get rid of a nuisance.

We believe that Mesa group's actions lead to a simple conclusion—the Mesa group is trying to protect its own "right" to disrupt Gulf's affairs by calling meetings, proposing charter amendments and placing its own special representatives on the Gulf Board.

Remember, Pickens' duty is to Mesa shareholders and his group not to you.

MESA'S INCONSISTENCY

Consider whether the Mesa group is acting to further your interests in this opposition.

- Mesa has always been a Delaware corporation and has never elected its directors under cumulative voting.
- Sunshine Mining Company, a member of the Mesa group, eliminated cumulative voting in 1980, when it chose to reincorporate in Delaware after spending 62 years incorporated in the state of Washington.
- In fact, Sunshine told its shareholders:

"the general carporation law of Delaware affords a modern, flexible legal framework for canducting carporate affairs. Amang ather things, the Board of Directors believes that Delaware law provides greater flexibility than Washington law respecting the activities and management of the Company."

In the opinion of Gulf management, Pickens and the management of Sunshine Mining Company owe you an explanation of how they can oppose the reorganization of Gulf on the grounds they stated when the shareholders of their own companies do not have such "rights".

Pickens' double-standard is evident: According to him Delaware is the right choice for Mesa and Sunshine — but not for Gulf. Ask yourself: Is Pickens really acting in your interests?

■ Finally, on March 31, 1976, in his annual report letter to the Mesa shareholders, Pickens stated:

"The various proposals for breaking up the majar integrated oil campanies are ill conceived and, in the long term, would be extremely detrimental to the energy situation." Today, Pickens is beating a different drum. In the press and elsewhere he advocates spinning off assets, establishing royalty trusts and liquidating assets. Such actions, as applied to Gulf, would, in the opinion of Gulf management, be to the detriment of reinvestment in exploration and would inevitably lead to a reduction in reserves.

Certainly, we believe Pickens should tell you why the proposals were "ill conceived" in 1976 and why he naw advocates such proposals to Gulf's sharehalders in 1983. In our opinion, Pickens' sole purpose is to further the aims of the Mesa group, not yours.

We do not trust the motives of Pickens and his so-called "Gulf Investors Group". We do not believe you can afford to trust them either.

Your Board and management is making solid gains, taking bold actions and enhancing your investment.

Don't you agree that Gulf should continue on its strategic path and not be sidetracked by schemes intended to serve the short-term goals of a select few? Your Board and management are not only open to, but continue aggressively to search for actions to further the overriding objective of enhancing share value. The shareholders of Gulf Oil Corporation should have a Board of Directors that can act in the best interests of all of the Company's shareholders.

MF Reportedly Will Delay Action on Loan Plan for Brazil Until Tuesday

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The International Monetary Fund has decided to delay action on a loan package for Brazil antil next Tuesday. nonctary sources said Tuesday.

The sources said the agency "needed more time," to consider the natter, although there had been concern that the $6.5-billion loan Sickage being assembled by commercial banks was still not sufficiently.

The IMF had been expected to approve a new loan program for Brazil this Friday, a move that would free up immediately about $1.3 billion

Toshiba Plans VTR Production in U.K.

TOKYO (Reuters) — Toshiba Corp. said Thesday it will start producing videotape recorders in Britain in April at its subsidiary in Plymouth, England, Toshiba Consumer Products (U.K.) Ltd.

The company said it decided to make VTRs there at a monthly rate of the company said it decided to make VTRs there at a monthly rate of 10,000 sets to meet growing demand in Europe.

The subsidiary will begin marketing VTRs in Britain and other European countries in May next year, Toshiba added. The plant now assembles color televisions and employs about 450 workers, but production of VTRs there will create 50 jobs.

Manila Said to Seek $4.6-Billion Loans MANIIA (Reiners) — The Philippines is negotiating for about $4.6 billion in loans to solve its current economic crisis, government officials said Tuesday.

Prime Minister Cesar Virata has said the economy needed at least $4 billion to "restart" the economic process that has been at a standstill following the imposition last month of a 90-day moratorium on debtrepayments.

Separately, Japanese Embassy officials said the Philippines was negotiating to convert its yen credit package for 1983 to 1984, which was to be used on development projects, into a commodity loan. They said Japan has not yet pledged the package but the Philippines will probably get about $250 million, the same amount as last year.

Foreign Firms Win China Oil Contracts

BEIJINO (Renters) — The China National Offshore Oil Corp. said Tuesday it signed the sixth contract in the first round of bidding for offshore oil and gas exploration and development with U.S., Australian and Spanish groups.
- Sun Orient Exploration Co., Pennzoil Far East Co, Ampol Exploration

Co. Ltd. and Hispanica de Petroleos SA contracted for two areas in the Beibu Gulf basin of the South China Sea, it said.

Sun Orient and Pennzoil Far East will each act as operators in one of the contract areas, the Chinese corporation said. The percentage interest of each of the companies was not immediately available, but as usual under the competitive bidding contracts, the foreign partner will provide all funding during the exploration phase.

British Aerospace Order Predicted

LONDON (Renters) - British Aerospace is expected to announce Wednesday a major U.S. order for its new BA-146 jetliner eyen though formal signing has not yet taken place, industry sources said Tuesday.

A company spokesman confirmed that an amount about a civil aircraft agreement is due late Wednesday but declined to give details. The BA-146, a 100-seat airliner, was first demonstrated last year.

Denmark Alters State Oil Firm's Board

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Denmark's conservative led government has removed board members of the state oil company appointed by the previous Social Democratic government, the Energy Ministry said Tuesday.

A ministry communique said that the vacant directorships on the board of Dansk Olie & Naturgas will be filled with government supporters from the civil service.

The move follows disagreements between the state concern's managing director, Jens Christensen, and the energy minister, Kund Enggard, Mr. Christensen is to be replaced by Holger Lavesen, the ministry said.

Israel Prices Up 21.1% in Month

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatche JERUSALEM — Israel said Tuesday that it had inflation of 21.1 percent in October alone.

its highest for a single month.

Annual inflation, which has topped 100 percent for the past four years was expected to reach 166 percent to 180 percent in 1983. The previous high was 13.3 percent in April.

Separately, Finance Minister Yigal Cohen-Orgad said that Israel would cut spending on the Jewish settlements in the West Bank as part of its new austerity plan. Mr. Cohen-Orgad, who took office amid a major economic crisis last month, made clear at a news conference he was reversing many of the policies of his predecessor, Yoram Aridor. (AP, Reuters)

World Bank Is Considering Using Financial Futures for the First Time

By David Stamp

AMSTERDAM - The World Bank is considering using finan-cial-futures markets for the first time to help stabilize its income, the bank's treasurer, Eugene Rot-tition, they fear, Boeing could easily dictate prices and terms for air-craft sales.

The need to win some orders from Boeing and to keep slumping commercial operations alive even prompted McDonnell Douglas to agree last year to lease 35 DC-9 Super 80s (now called the MD-80) to American and Trans World airlines, in agreements that allowed the two carriers to put up little of their own money. The 140-seat MD-80 remains McDonnell Douglas's only commercial jetliner pro-gram.

Trying to prevent Bocing from achieving a virtual monopoly has central goal for Airbus for much of its 13-year existence. In 1979, the government-subsidized consortium of French, West German, British and Spanish aerospace companies

Christmas shopping season be-cause of "problems of availability."

J. Duncan Muir, a spokesman for Penney, the nation's third-largest retailer, said Monday the move "right oow is just for Christmas." He added, "We don't know what will happen after that."

Penney has thus followed K mart Corp. in not selling the Adam line, made by Coleco Industries, this season. The announcement raised a possibility that the computer sys-tem, which includes a tape-storage system for data and a printer, might be hard to come by in the next few months. The comhas been selling for about $600. Because of a price increase announced last week, however, it is expected to rise to about $750 after

Mr. Muir said that Penney had considered carrying the Adam sys-tem but that no orders were placed. A spokesman for K mart, the nation's No. 2 retailer (after Sears, Roebuck & Co.), said Monday that K mart "still has oot made a decision" whether to carry the machine

WILD JUSTICE The Evolution of Revenge

By Susan Jacoby. 387 pp. $17.95.

Harper & Row, 10 East 53d St., New York, N.Y. 10022. Reviewed by Michiko Kakutani

S USAN JACOBY takes the title of her intel-ligent new book from a line in Francis Bacon's essays, "Revenge is a kind of wild justice, which the more man's nature runs to. the more ought law to weed it out." It is Jacoby's contention that despite modern society's distaste for this primitive and disturbing emotion, revenge is a legitimate impulse in human nature, and it occupies a legitimate, indeed necessary, place in any scheme of social justice. Her study attempts not only to trace the shifting relationship between revenge and the idea of law, but also to define those forms of revenge that are consistent with the values of a civilized society.

This, of course, is an enormously ambitious task, and potentially a most rewarding one, for the subject cuts across social, moral, religious and political boundaries, and Jacoby uses his-torical and literary material to give her personal observations resonance and weight,

Certainly this methodology has been used effectively in the past, beginning with Robert Burton's classic study, "The Anatomy of Mel-ancholy," a study that is at once an investigation into the causes and symptoms of an emo-tional state and also a remarkable document of Jacobean scholarship. Recent attempts to employ a similar approach include A. Alvarez's huad study of suicide, "Savage God," and Joseph Epstein's examination of "Ambition, the Secret Passion."

Jacoby, on her part, makes a brave, if somewhat unsatisfying, effort to trace the evolution of revenge "from the collective, hereditary ven-detta that prevailed in the earliest stages of civilization to a system of law in which crime becomes an insult to the community as well as to the family or tribe and punishment becomes a public rather than a private duty."

What "Wild Justice" suffers from is a lack of focus. The definition offered of the vindictive drive — the need of human beings "to avenge their injuries, to restore a sense of equity when they felt their integrity had been violated" - is broad enough to apply to just about everything from lovers' quarrels to the Holocanst, and Jacoby attempts to do just that. Among the case studies in "Wild Justice" are Jean Harris's shooting of her former lover, the Scarsdale diet doctor, Herman Tarnower; the execution of Adolf Eichmann; the duel between Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton: the 1982 massacre of Palestinian refugees in Beirut, and the trial of Charles Manson

The result is a sprawling, soft-edged book that discusses a host of important issues under the umbrella of revenge, but never really ties them together.

As a collection of essays, however, "Wild Justice" is frequently brilliant, Jacoby possesses a fierce intelligence and a nimble, unfettered imagination, and she has the ability to write about dense subject matter with clarity and discrimination. Her appraisal of the changing role of the avenger in literature and her analysis of how a double standard has been applied to women as victims and victimizers these are particularly fine.

Equally perceptive is her chapter on the role that religion has played in defining our atti-tudes toward revenge. Having expertly dismantled a set of stereotypes — the images of the Old Testament God of vengeance and the New Testament God of mercy - Jacoby expounds upon the contradictory attitudes toward forgiveness and retribution contained in both the Christian Gospels and Talmudic writ-ings of the time. She then goes on to discuss how religious anti-Semitism, in which the Jews as a people are charged with deicide for their role in the crucifixion of Christ, contradicts the Christian doctrines of individual responsibility and divinely sanctioned vengeance.

As Jacoby sees it, the word "revenge" has taken on pejorative connotations today; contemporary psychiatric theory, after all, has taught us that the instinct to retaliate is unhealthy, and urges us, instead, to "furgive and forget." At the same time, there has been a loss of confidence in the ability of our public instiof confidence in the ability of our photoe rational tutions to dispense fair and measured retribution: not only are we increasingly skeptical about our criminal justice system, but with the decline in religious faith we are also less inclined to believe that scores will be justly former than the control of the control o settled by God nn Judgment Day, Given the ineradicable human need to believe in "just deserts," this dual development, Jacoby be-lieves, can only lead to frustration and wilder and more personal displays of revenge.

Yacht Group to Debate 12-Meter Keels

By Joanne A. Fishman New York Times Service

NEW YORK - The future of be 12-meter class, the type of yacht sed in the America's Cup compe-tion, will be at stake this week then the keel-boat committee of he International Yacht Racing mion, the sport's international iverning body, meets in London. At issue is whether 12-meters fould be allowed to have winged dels, as did Australia II when it on the America's Cup in Septem-

Also of concern is whether prop-procedures were followed by the keel controversy last summer caused the U.S. Yacht Racing Union and the New York Yacht a ruling on the legality of Australia rate wings."

Il's winged keel. The NYYC had contended that Australia II was not rated correctly because when the yacht heeled the leeward wing tilted down, giving her extra, unrated draft.

The keel-boat committee, responsible for interpreting the rules for all keel-boat classes, is made up ernational authority in arriving of 14 members from 12 countries.

Vilder, Bucs' Top Back, Out for Year

TAMPA, Florida (UPI) - James Wilder, who set a National Football ague record two weeks ago with 42 carries against Pittsburgh, has been st for the season, Tampa Bay coach John McKay said Monday. During inday's game against Cleveland, Wilder badly cracked two ribs "over e spleen and kidney area," said McKay.

Wilder was virtually the entire offense for the 1-10 Buccaneers. His 161 rries netted 640 yards, 407 of them in the last three games, and his 57 ss receptions leads the league. After setting the NFL mark for carries, ilder ran for a club-record 219 yards in a 17-12 victory over Minnesota.

European Nerves on Edge

LONDON — The shape of European soccer to come is ready to by Thursday we should know most he other qualifiers for the eightnation finals in France.

While we wait, two images fight for attention. First, the healthy expectation of men at full stretch in oursuit of their athletic goals. Secnd, the anger on the face of the political leader of the grand duchy of Luxembourg the last time En-gland, Wednesday's visitor, played

He stood, broken whisky bottle in hand, surveying the wreckage of a tiny nation's stadium at the hands of British hooligans. His anger and bewilderment was like that of a father whose child has been raped. "Why?" be asked. "Why do they do

The fact that Luxembourg, the team, is almost as defenseless on the field must, alas, be of secondary consideration. Almost to a ma Luxembourg's police force awaits in trepidation the unnaceptable return of the thugs whose mayhem finds pitiful opposition from its own government.

After a meeting of European sports ministers last weekend, Enend's Neil MacFarlane uttered this statement: "Without being complacent, I think it's getting better. I was delighted when my European ministerial colleagues said to me that they had worse fans than we have here." Charming.

The soccer match, too, might be important. I say might because by the time Luxembourg and England kick off, it may already be too late for the expected avalanche of English goals to matter.

A couple of hours earlier, Denmark will have had the chance to put Group Three out of anybody's reach but its own. It plays the Greeks in Athens, and a victory for Denmark would simply leave Eneland's players with no back door to go through.

Last month, you may recall, I had egg on my face after predicting that Denmark, unquestionably the most skillful team in the group, would qualify there and then by winning in Budapest. What happened? The Danes lost to a dreadful Hungarian team. They lost after dominating play, after missing five clear chances and then surrendering an "amateur" goal through a goalkeeper's cardinal error - oot guarding his near

You could believe one of two things: Either destiny thwarted the Danes or their oerve broke. If it was the latter, nerve will surely fail again in Athens, where the atmo-sphere is usually crippling to those the final match between Czechoslowho cower.

The English can only sit and wait. They will be in their Luxembourg locker room as Denmark plays, and the result should be known before they take the field. If Denmark should only draw, a victory would put England through to a qualifying position that, I still lieve, would be soccer's loss. Denmark, geared as it is to a more creative philosophy - a need, if you like - than any team in Europe, would grace the finals.

One team that awaits them is Portugal. Having beaten the Russians on a penalty goal last Sunday. the Portuguese have thus shown how ntterly unpredictable soccer can be. Less than seven months ago, slaughtered by 5-0 in Moscow, Portugal appeared dead and hur-ied. But although the Soviet Union was until Sunday unbeaten for three years, its failure to beat the Poles in Poland was the turning point of a group charged with emotion and political significance. Poland, losers home and away to Portugal had again been instrumental in Big Brother's failure.

Italy, meanwhile, those failed Italians of World Cup fame, is reduced to trying 10 sort out another Eastern European quest for glory in France. The Italians would like to experiment, to build for the future, but are morally bound to field their "strongest side" in Prague on Wednesday to try to prevent Czechoslovakia's catching Sweden and Romania at the head of the group. Wednesday will pos-

vakia and Romania on Nov. 30 will truly decide the group

West Germany, however, has Group Six in its power. Karl-Heinz Rummenigge, as ever, is carrylog an injury but is expected to play against Northern Ireland in Hamburg. He'll be lonely. His brother Michael has lost form and will not partner him and the prolific Rudi Voller is doubtful for the match.

Even so - and even without Bernd Schuster - the West Germans are beginning to get their act together, and much as the Irish will fight, it will be surprising if West Germany does not underscore the quality that comes from possessing 50 people to every one Irishman from which to select a winning

In that same group. Austria clings to a remote hope of qualify-ing, although its journey to Turkey Wednesday is fraught with pitfalls. Being Turkey, some of those tend to be on the playing surface itself, which is often ill-suited to quanty performance.

Wales may be similarly afflicted in Bulgaria. It will, on whatever field they play, be a claustrophobic, tenacious contest for the Welsh. who need a draw to stay ahead of their main rival, Yugoslavia, in Group Four.

Bui Wednesday's most attritional match is likely to be between the Netherlands and Spain. The Span-ish, disgraced in the World Cup, are unbeaten in a year under former Real Madrid coach Miguel Muñoz. Yet the Dutch are only two points back and are superior on goal average

So while Spain will play unmercifully for the draw (and nobody should need me to say again how crippling that's likely to be), we are back to the question of nerve.

The Dutch, no pansies them-selves even in the heyday of Cruyff & Co., thought qualifying beyond them last year. Then Kees Rijvers turned to youth and in Dublin this fall it turned a 0-2 halftime deficit to a 3-2 triumph Ruud Guillet, the elegant sweeper from Feyenoord, was released from defense to attack in the second half; virtually single-handed, he brought his country from the hrink of defeat. One more outing like that, and the rebirth of the Dutch is only a formality.

And, to prove that oothing was learned from Denmark's failure in Budapest, my neck is offered on a final eight in the European championship: Belgium, France, Portugal, Denmark, Wales, West Germany, le for the Soviet Unico to be there too.

Dickerson Paces 36-13 Rout by Rams

Rookie running back Eric Dickerson rushed for 146 yards increasing his National Football League-leading total to 1,369-to lead the Los Angeles Rams to a 36-13 trouncing of the Falcons Monday night in Atlanta. Dickerson broke the Rams' single-season rushing total of 1,238 yards, set by Lawrence McCutcheon in 1977, and his two touchdowns gave him 19 for the year, two more than the franchise record he had shared with Elroy Hirsch and Wendell Tyler.

Odds and Ends in Politics

By Russell Baker

NEW YORK — A mathematilies not in our stars, nor in ourselves, but in numbers argues the Democrats can win the presidency next year by nominating a man named Buck. Norman or Pete.

His theory holds that modern U.S. politics since Franklin Roosevelt - the first modern American politician - is governed not by ideology, party registration, publicrelations flummery or television. hut by an immutable system involving the first letters of politicians' names and their numerical placements in the alphabet.

Studying the nine presidents from Roosevelt through Reagan. an astonishing fact emerges: Eight of the nine had first names starting with even numbers, as follows:

Franklin (6), Harry (8), Dwight (4), John (10), Lyndon (12), Richard (18), Jimmy (10) and Ronald

At first glance, the theory that destiny insists an even-numbered first-name in the White House seems to he shattered by Gerald Ford, with his odd-numbered G

This apparent anomaly, however, turns out to strengthen the theory once we recall that Gerald was the only one of the nine who was never elected. He was appointed by Richard to the vice presidency to succeed the resigned Spiro (a doomed odd-number 191, succeeded 10 the presidency when Richard stepped down, and was beaten in the election when he had to face the even-numbered Jimmy (10).

Could there he clearer evidence that we are living in the era of the tyrannical even number? Yes, A glance at losing candidates since 1936 seals the case. With his powerful even 6, Franklin easily dispatched Alfred (1) Landon and Wendell (23) Willkie.

To be sure. Thomas E. Dewey was a 20, but his middle initial E (5) was powerless against Roosevelt's even-numbered D (4). Even against Harry S. Truman, with his 8 up front hut a dismal 19 in the middle, Dewey's 20 and 5 couldn't win. Why? Harry S. Truman contained six even-numbered letters; Thomas E. Dewey, only three,

Adlai, with his disabling I, was easily beaten by even-numbered

Dwight (4). And though Richard Nixon went into the 1960 campaign with a good even 18, he was up against John F. Kennedy, who not only had a 10 up front, but also a 6 to start his middle name. Nixon was stuck with a losing M. (13). Against Lyndon B. Johnson (12 up front, 2 in the middle, 10 in the thrid position), poor Barry Gold-water fielded a 2 with "Barry" but the G in Goldwater doomed him with an odd 7.

George (7) McGovern made an easy meal for Richard (18) Nixon in 1972. The 10 that enabled Jimmy Carter to beat Gerald (7) Ford in 1976 wasn't good enough to stand up against Ronald Reagan's 18 in 1980, since his second name with its hopeless C (3), was easily beaten by the even-numbered 18 Ronald was packing in "Reagan." These studies make possible some reasonable mathematical predictions about the coming presidential campaign. First, the following Democratic candidates probably cannot win: Alan (1) Cranston; Ernest (5)

Hollings; Gary (7) Hart; George (7) McGovern; Walter (23) Mon-

chance are John (10) Glenn; Jesse (10) Jackson: and Reubin (18)

Running against Ronald Reagan (18, 18), however, neither John Glenn (10, 7) nor Reuhin Askew (18, 1) has enough even numbers for victory. The only one who has enough to give the president a fight is Jesse Jackson, with his impressive 10, 10 to pit against Ronald Reagan's 18, 18.

Even Jackson must lose though under the burden of nine odd-numbered letters in his full name, since Reagan is hurdened with only six.

Still there may be hope for the Democrats. Since Roosevelt the presidency has been won by a 4 (Dwight), a 6 (Franklin), an 8 (Harry), two 10s (John and Jimmy), a 12 (Lyndon), and two 18s, (Ronald and Richard). It seems probable that the even-numbered series is crying out to be fulfilled, with a 2, a 14 and a 16. If so the Democrats' only hope may be to nominate a Buck (2) a Norman (14) or a Pasquale (16).

Hortense Calisher

A Novelist Ventures Some Thoughts

On Gravity and Space Voyages

By John Noble Wilford New York Times Service

EW YORK - Few people Ngive gravity a thought. Their feet are on the ground, always have been, and that is that. Only its absence in the ordinary sense, as in space flight, elevates gravity from the feet to the mind, where it must linger as a memory of that which has been left behind. Gravity, in the mind of Hortense Calisher, is part of the "dowry we give up when we go into outer

Although she has never flown in space, being a novelist, Calisher has for several years wondered what it must be like, physically and spiritually, to leave the earth and gravity in search of a future elsewhere. She wondered what would motivate non-astronauts to undertake such a venture and how they might react to the challenges and stresses.

She found herself almost alone in her thoughts. Just as people take gravity for granted, she said, "We take the scientific miracles of our time into our daily life, but not into our consciousness. Here was the space age going on, and almost everyone I knew relegated it to science fiction, to unreality. But we are moving into space now, and it could revolutionize our life." Out of this thinking came Ca-lisher's just-published ninth nov-el, "Mysteries of Motion." In the book, set in the not-so-distant fu-ture, sometime before the end of this century, she explores the lives of seven people who emhark in a large space shuttle, en route to the first orbiting habitat for a colony of fairly ordinary people, not scientists and astronauts.

The book is a notable departure from Calisher's previous work. One of her early novels, "Journal from Ellipsia," was a fantasy about an imaginary plan-et. But in that and in her other work, as she said, "I've been writing about the innerness of people. I still am, hut I'm verging toward writing about the physicality of

"In the day of the wagon wheel, or the freighter coaling into the sunset, or the ocean liner with its cups of tea, or the trains prohing the Rockies and carrying a honeymoon couple or a corpse, n life and its journey were synonymous. The two voyages were one. An air trip is a pocket out of life, an anti-life means to an end, with a tray and a toilet between. But in outer space, with the means so huge and the journey so far, what then? Time — what would it become? All that gear would it become household, or at least a caravan? Put real people there, with real lives behind them, and could the old continuity come again?

"Which would win out, the voyage or the life?" The voyage will be taken, nonetheless, Calisher thinks. "If we think of somewhere to go, we always go," she said. "In a sense this is our intellectual glory."

The writer is already working on her next novel, which will not be about space. But would she, having made the journey in her imagination, like to go into space herself? The National Aeronau-tics and Space Administration is considering a plan to permit pri-vate citizens, including writers, to fly on some of the future space shuttle missions,

"No, no," she replied, as if sur-prised by the question. "I'm too

She was born in Manhattan in 1911. But as she thought about it some more - perhaps she had never before given it a thought, like people who never think about gravity — she reversed herself.
"I'm really not that old," Ca-lisher said, finally. 'Perhaps 1 would like to. Yes, I'd very much like to go into space."

A husinessman from West Germany who was mugged twice in the same day says his future sightsecing will be done by car. After arriving in San Francisco for a petroleum engineering convention, Wolfgang Schaefer, 36, and a friend decided to tour the city, starting with a trip Sunday to Golden Gate Park. "About 4 P.M. we thought we would walk back to the hotel." said Schaefer, of Kassel. "It was such a nice afternoon, the rain had stopped and it was not a long walk." Police Inspector Iewish children during the Nazi & Joseph Toomey said four men in cupation of France. The indges also their 20s grabbed Schaefer's cam-awarded a special $100,000 prize & era bag, containing his camera and equipment valued at more than $500. Schaefer ran after the four men while his friend tried to call police, but the robbers disappeared into a housing project. Schaefer said he stopped near eight youths and asked: "Please help me find those men. They took my camera." Instead of helping Schaefer, the youths attacked, grabbing him by the collar and hitting him about the shoulders and head. Toomey said. One of them stole Schaefer's wallet. They got about $50 in U.S. currency and $200 worth of German

Thousands of Bangladeshis, many waving the Union Jack, cheered Britain's Queen Elizabeth Tuesday as she placed a wreath on the mass grave of the nation's inde-pendence fighters. The queen and her husband, Prince Pulip, making their first visit to the subcontinent in 21 years, passed impoverished farming and fishing villages along the 18-mile route northeast from Dhaka to the war memorial. The memorial contains the mass grave of the unknown dead of the 1971 war for independence from Pakistan. The 57-year-old monarch, on her 68th official overseas tour since ber coronation in 1951, arrived in Bangladesh from Kenya Monday night. The royal couple is sched-uled to leave for neighboring India Thursday to open the summit of Commonwealth nations, which begins Nov. 23.
